I had no such conversation with the boys. Additionally, I hadn't responded to your proposal until April 1st because I was still considering it, contemplating discussing it with legal, as it deviates from the interim, interim agreement (previously agreed upon in an effort to prevent a possible vacuum from occurring.)

Perhaps the conversation you mentioned has more to do with Joshua simply expressing concerns about the lack of fairness in the current custody arrangement, which you've forced.

In 2023, I was significantly more involved in the boys' before and after school activities, including Lab Learning, Hockey, Ice Skating, Music classes, Swim, and Tennis, representing approximately 65% of their participation, while you were occupied with work. However, there has since been a notable shift in this dynamic, which has been unilateral on your part. Undoubtedly, this change has had a considerable impact on the boys' lives.

Furthermore, I've received multiple letters from Delaney Roberts alleging that my emotional state, particularly instances of 'crying,' has caused distress for the children. However, I refute the claim that I have been crying constantly in front of the children. In fact, Christian has questioned me about why the contact photo assigned to me on your phone is a picture of me crying on the couch.

Thank you for arranging counseling for the boys.

Thanks.

Joshua told me during our call on Sunday night that you agreed to the proposed dates

Could I please remind you that both boys are exhibiting signs of significant anxiety. Parenting issues should be discussed with me, not the children. Continuing to involve them is detrimental to their mental health.

I've arranged counselling for them.
